0 The big picture

The whole idea

1 Updates and volunteers come back to students: the loop we want to close

Proposed problem

We think every new initiative starts from zero. SGA does not know what students want, cannot show how many care, and students rarely hear what happened.

Proposed solution

One place where students post and back ideas, boards work on a few at a time, everyone sees progress, and students who offer to help are not lost.

TO DISCUSS

- Is this the right problem to solve?
- What would you remove from the idea?

1 Browse ideas

Students

1. Two lists: ideas waiting, and ideas being worked on
2. Search and a few filters, nothing more
3. Support and offer to help sit side by side

Proposed problem

We think students cannot see what others already want, so the same ideas get raised again and again and nobody knows which matter most.

Proposed solution

A simple list anyone can search and filter, showing each idea's status and support at a glance.

TO DISCUSS

- What would you look for first on this page?
- What would make you scroll past it?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

2 Post an idea

Students

1. A nudge toward an existing idea, so support is not split
2. Seven fields: too many, or about right?
3. Posted right away, and you support it automatically

Proposed problem

We think sharing an idea takes too much effort or feels pointless, so most students stay quiet.

Proposed solution

A short form that warns you when a similar idea already exists, so support builds in one place.

TO DISCUSS

- Which fields would you skip?
- Would you post under your name?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

3 Support and offer to help

Students

Proposed problem

We think a like or a signature does not tell SGA who would actually help, and a limited vote hides how many students care.

Proposed solution

Two taps: support as many ideas as you like, and separately say you would help work on one.

Works for me	Worries me	Missing or change

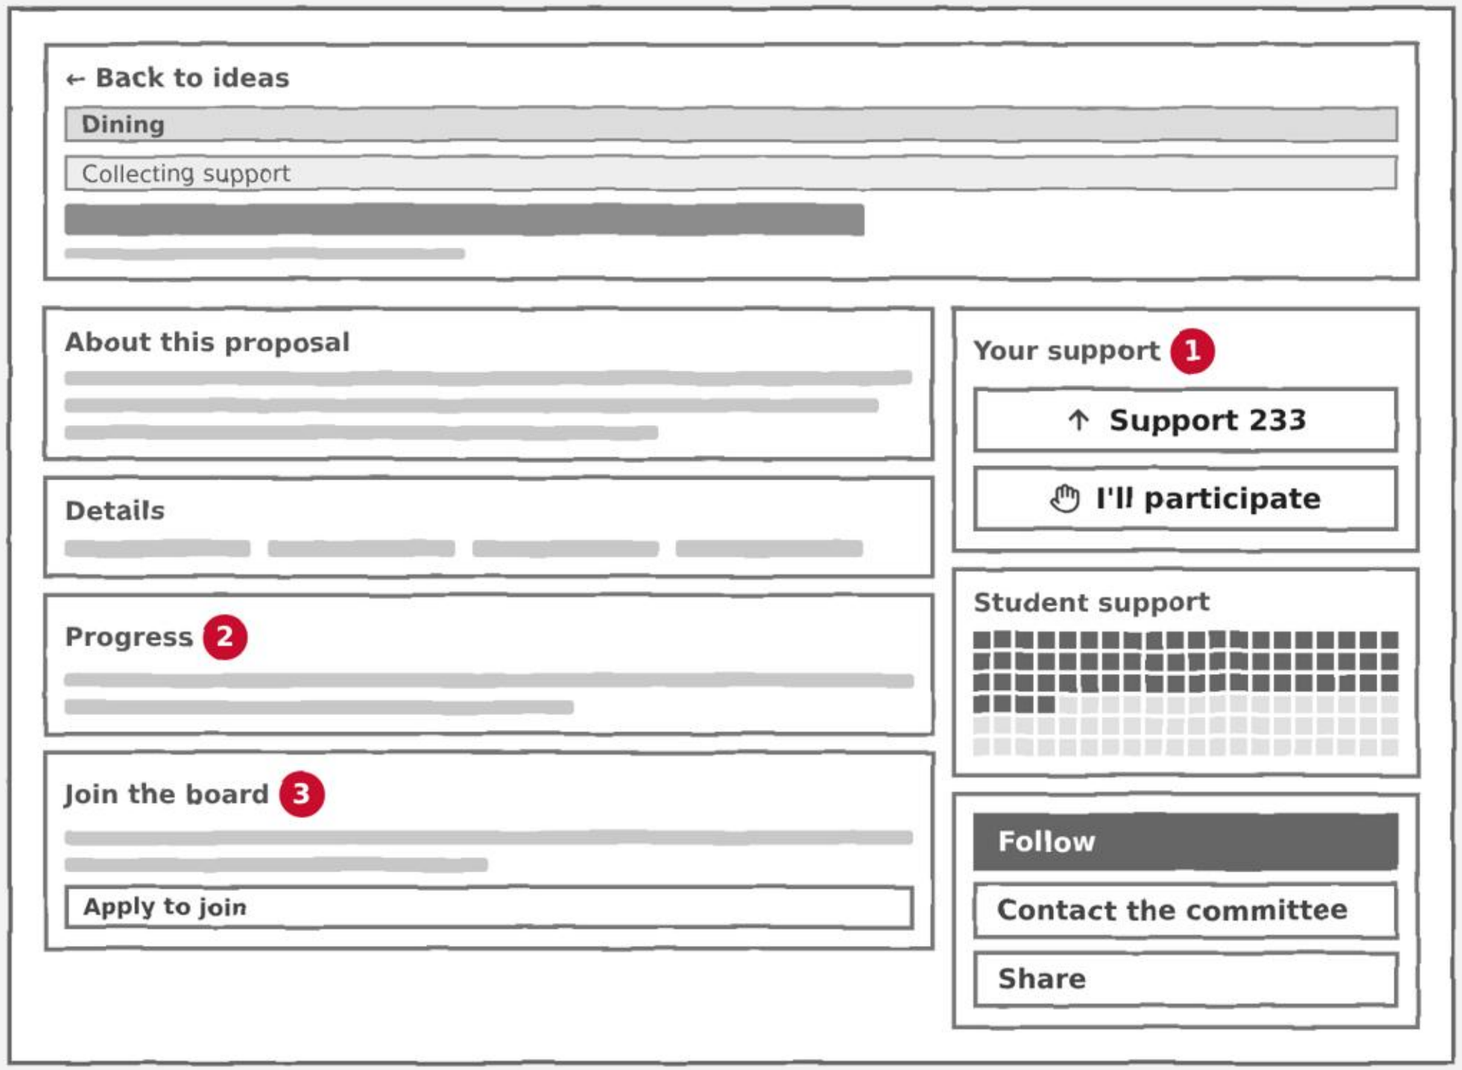

TO DISCUSS

- Should support be unlimited?
- What would you worry about before tapping "I'll participate"?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

4 One idea's page

Students

1. Support and participate in a sidebar that follows you
2. Progress and expectations in plain words
3. How to join the board that would work on it

Proposed problem

We think a short card is not enough to decide whether to back an idea, or to trust what happens next.

Proposed solution

One page with the full idea, who handles it, where it stands, and how to get involved.

- What is missing from this page?
- What is too much?

5 Showing how much support

A

233 students support this. Each square is one student.

233

Ranked #2 of 4 ideas for the Dining Board

+22 this week

C

233 votes, +22 this week

10 days ago → today

Proposed problem

We think a bare number does not persuade anyone, and a progress bar would imply a goal we have not set.

Proposed solution

Show the crowd, with one square per student, and where the idea ranks among its board's ideas.

- Which would convince an administrator?
- What else would you want to see?

6 Waiting and status

Students

Collecting support → Under review → In progress → Delivered

Waiting ← a board can put an idea on hold, but it keeps its support

Idea that is collecting support 1

The Dining Advisory Board looks at the list on Nov 3 and usually works on 1 or 2 ideas at a time.

Idea that is on hold 2

On hold. The board is busy with other ideas right now. It stays on the list and keeps its support.

1 A next review date, so waiting has an end

2 A plain reason when an idea is on hold

Proposed problem

We think waiting looks like being ignored, because a board can only take on 1 or 2 ideas at a time.

Proposed solution

Show an honest status, the reason when an idea waits, and when the board next looks at the list.

TO DISCUSS

- How long would you wait?
- What would you need to see to keep trusting it?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

7 Following progress

Students

1. A simple three-step path
2. Dated updates posted by the board
3. A notification when something changes

Proposed problem

We think students give their input and never hear back, so they stop giving it.

Proposed solution

Follow an idea to get dated updates, and see on one tab only what boards are really working on.

TO DISCUSS

- How often would you want updates?
- Email, phone, or Instagram?

8 Joining the board

Students

1. What the board does, when it meets, how much time
2. One clear button
3. Connects to the "I'll participate" tap

Proposed problem

We think SGA struggles to recruit, and students who want to help do not know how.

Proposed solution

Every idea page explains how to join the board that would work on it, in plain terms.

TO DISCUSS

- What would stop you from applying?
- What do you need to know first?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

9 Sharing an idea

Students

1. A link and quick-send buttons
2. A picture for stories and group chats
3. A printed flyer with a QR code for tabling

Proposed problem

We think ideas do not spread beyond the few people who already found the site.

Proposed solution

A link, a picture for stories and group chats, and a flyer with a QR code for tabling.

Works for me	Worries me	Missing or change

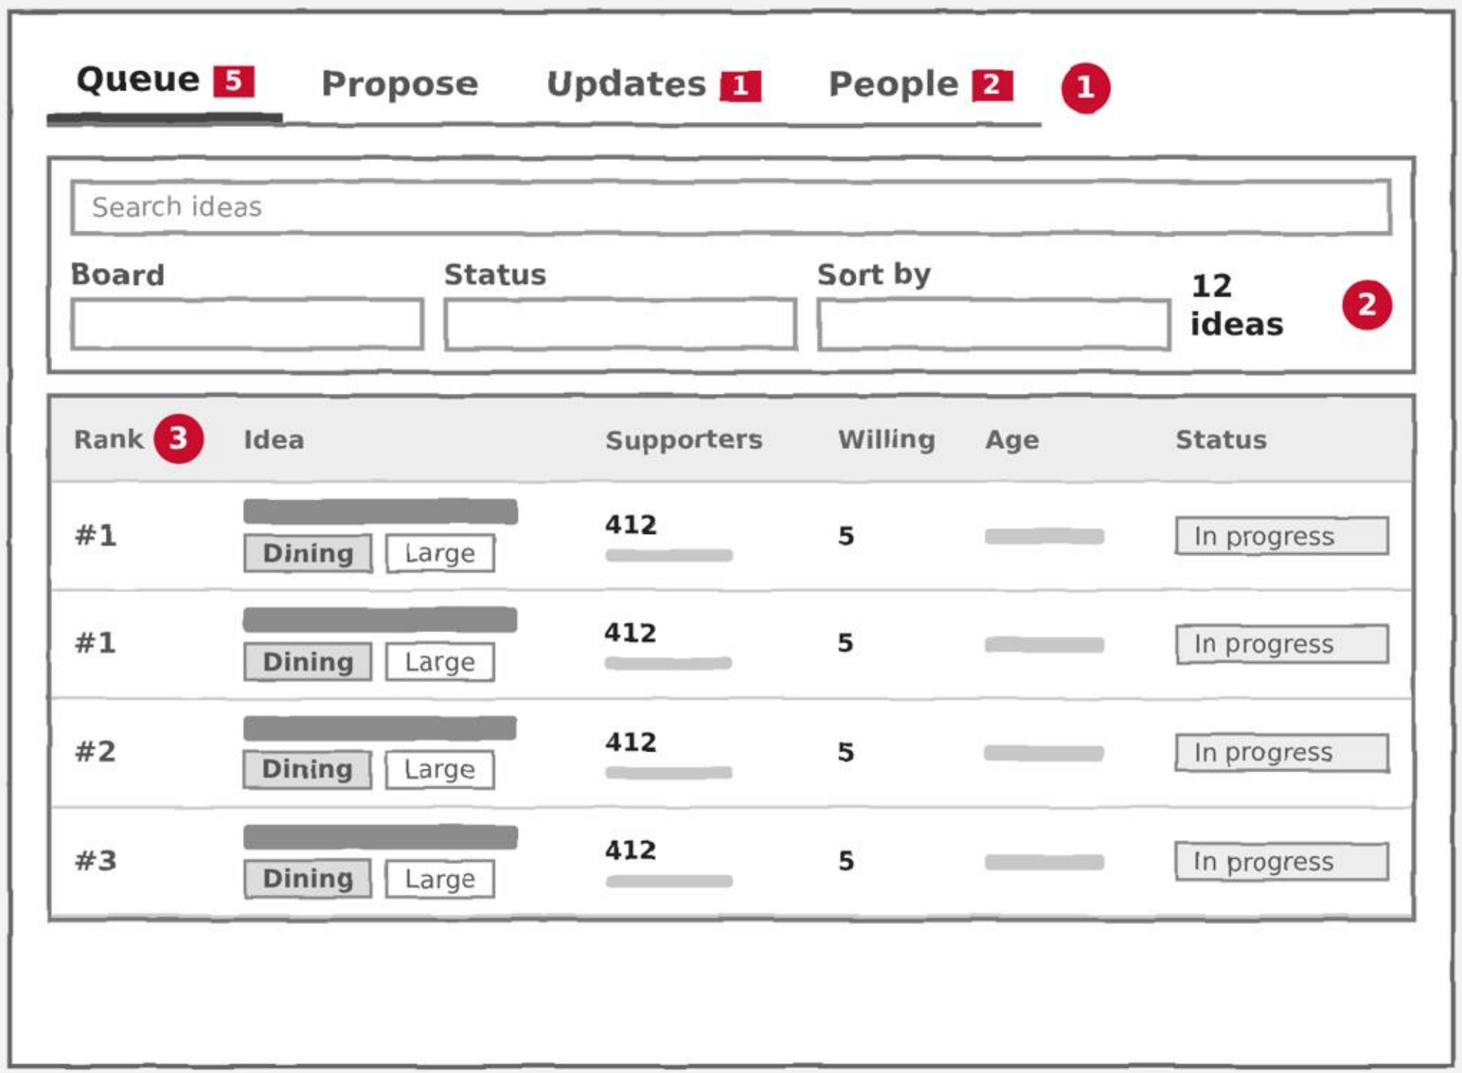

TO DISCUSS

- Where would you share an idea?
- Would you use a printed flyer?

10 Leader view: the queue

SGA leaders

1. Red numbers on the tabs show what needs you
2. Filters sit right on the list they change
3. Rank is within each board

Proposed problem

We think leaders cannot see what students want across boards, or what needs their attention first.

Proposed solution

One ranked list with simple filters, and small numbers on the tabs for what needs attention. No dashboard to click through first.

TO DISCUSS

- What would you check first each week?
- What is missing from each row?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

11 Leader view: deciding what to work on

SGA leaders

1. A heads-up, not a lock, when the board is full
2. A reason students will see when an idea waits

Proposed problem

We think a board can only take on 1 or 2 ideas at a time, and the choice has to be fair and visible to students.

Proposed solution

Simple decisions in one panel, a heads-up when a board is full, and a reason students can see when an idea waits.

Feedback: put sticky notes here

Works for me	Worries me	Missing or change

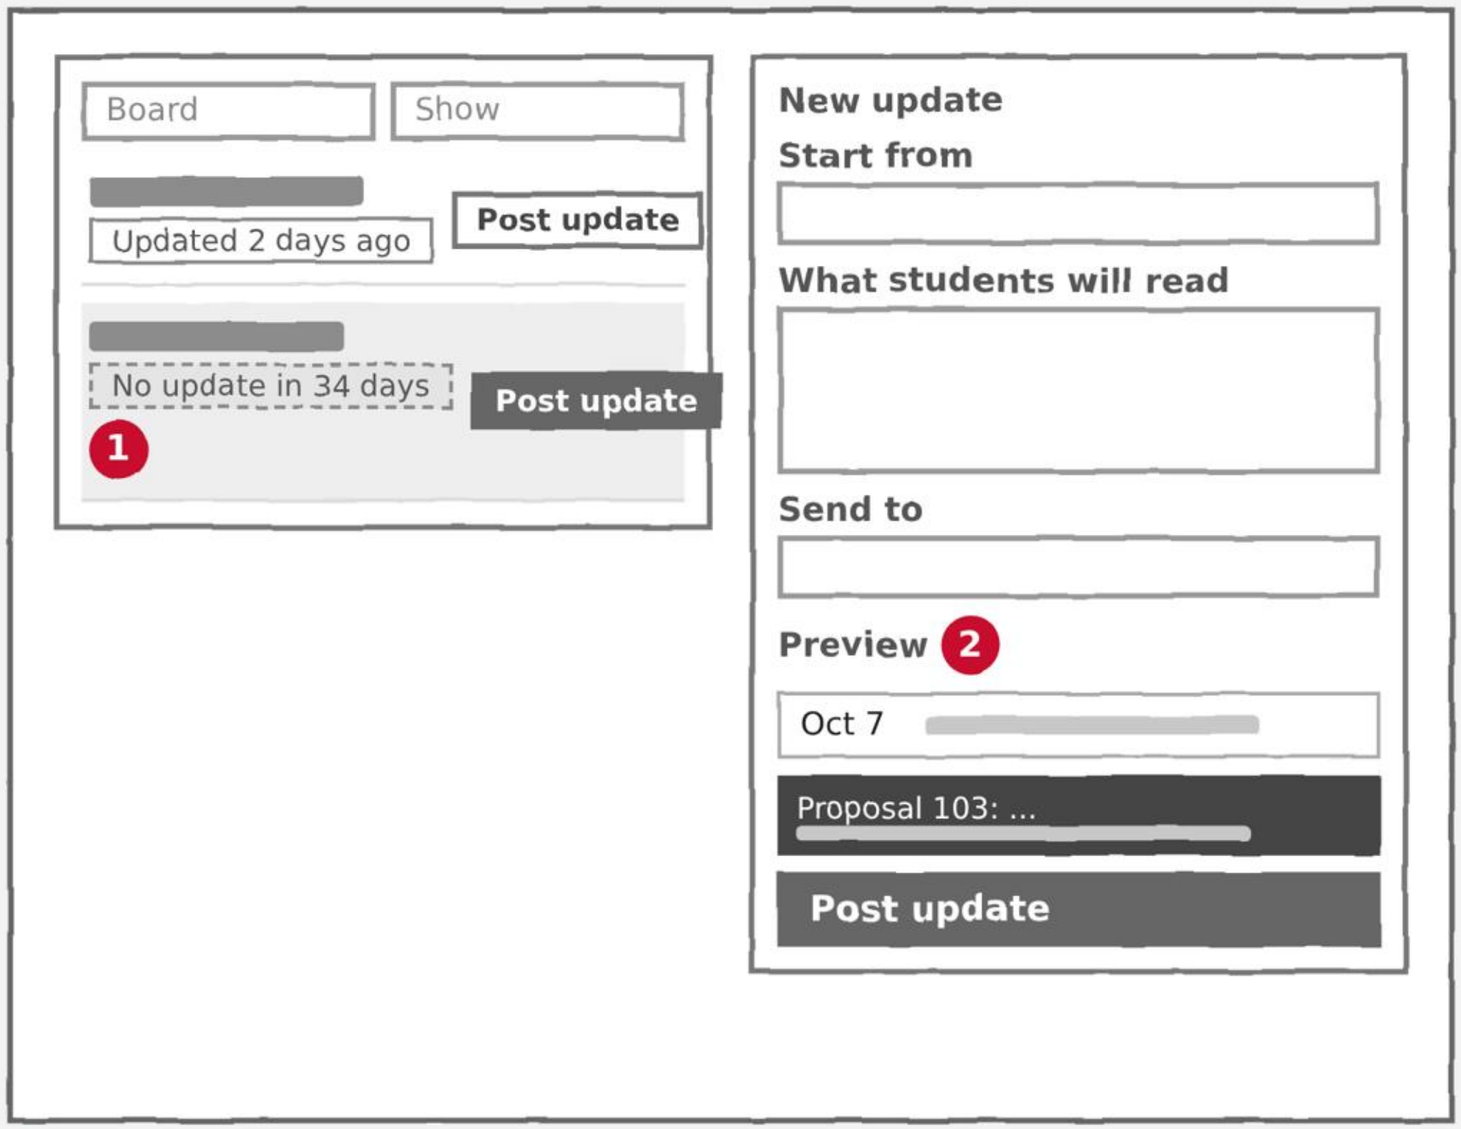

TO DISCUSS

- How should a board choose?
- Who has the final say?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

12 Leader view: posting updates

SGA leaders

1. Ideas with no update in a while are flagged
2. A preview of what students will see and get

Proposed problem

We think updates get dropped when leaders are busy or graduate, so students stop believing anything is happening.

Proposed solution

A list that flags ideas with no recent update, message templates, and a preview of exactly what students will see.

Feedback: put sticky notes here

Works for me	Worries me	Missing or change

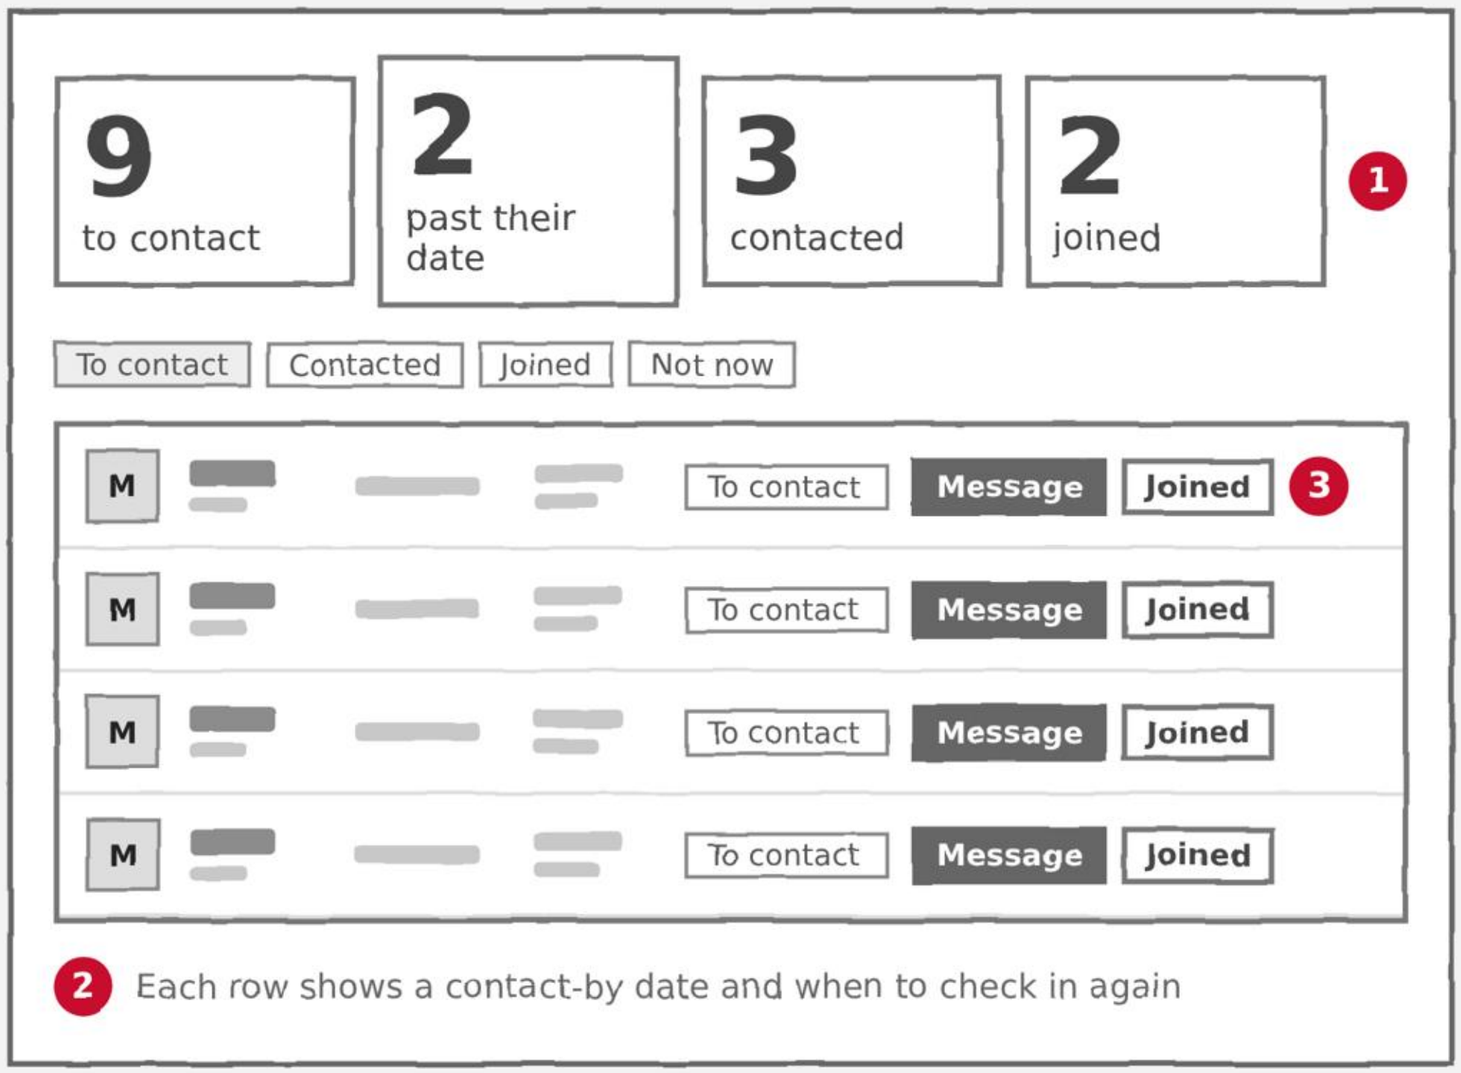

TO DISCUSS

- Who would post updates?
- How often is realistic?

Low-fi sketch for discussion. Nothing here is final.

13 Leader view: people who offered to help

SGA leaders

1. Past-due people are easy to see
2. A contact date and a check-in rhythm
3. Message templates, then one tap to log it

Proposed problem

We think students who offer to help get forgotten, so SGA keeps missing the members it says it wants.

Proposed solution

A contact date and regular check-ins for everyone who offers, with message templates ready to send.

- Who would own this?
